Teaching & learning methods used:

A wide variety of activities and learning methods will be used.

For example, you will have the chance to look at film footage from the 1940s and see how Cambridge has or hasn't changed. You will do some of your own Cambridge-related research (with the tutor's support) and share your findings. In another activity you will see a variety of interesting photos and will see if you can work out what you are actually looking at and where these things are in Cambridge.

To make it more interesting, you will sometimes work in pairs or small groups. The tutor will

Course Details

In short, this hopes to be informative and entertaining. The purpose is for people already with some knowledge of Cambridge to find out a variety of less common facts and stories, especially related to the University of Cambridge (i.e. its origin), and some of the city centre colleges of the University of Cambridge and their famous alumni. It is hoped participants will be able to see familiar places in a different light, and that this will help with extra ideas when showing friends/visitors around Cambridge. The tutor is a qualified Cambridge Green Badge Tour Guide.

How progress and success will be recorded:

"An initial quiz about Cambridge will be given (the results will remain secret).

This will be looked at again the end of the workshop and can give you some idea of the progress you have made. Interest shown in any future workshops will be one method of gauging success as well as analysing the feedback sheet given after the workshop."

Materials required for first week:
